BRITISH HAVE MILLION MEN READY FOR NEW CAMPAIGN. DECLARES FREDERICK PALMER

Great New Army All Trained for Battle Awaits Transports and Munitions to Start for Near East.

Frederick Palmer, who has been attached to the British army as war correspondent, and who has had perhaps the best opportunities afforded say one man for observing conditions at the front, returned to-day on the American liner St. Louis, to enjoy a furlough that will last until Feb. 15. In an interview given out aboard the ship this morning, Mr. Palmer said:

of Zeppelin raids over London seemed pretty tame. For real thrills they are not in the same class with half a dozen fifteen-inch German shells in s French town during the busy hour of the day. At the front old and young hear the fragments whizzing by. In London you have to walk miles to see where the bombs fell.

"The Zeppelin raids were a novelty but not war. One good burst of a high explosive shell at the front will de more military damage. And the novelty has worn off. The Zeppelins aust hit the Houses of Parliament or the Bank of England if they are to be interesting in the future.

"Miss Cavell's execution did more for recruiting than all the raids. I happened to be with the French when the news of her death was received. De effect on the troops was instant, electric. The woman's sacrifice had a Joan of Arc character that struck to the French heart.
